RUSTIC

Rustic effect is characterized by a classic, old world design. This effect features influence from the nature along with a distressed, rugged finish. Such tiles can be used in a variety of home applications in order to create or complement a rustic, classical design style. One of the primary features that characterizes this style of tile is its imperfection and its high textured surface that adds depth and character to it.

METALLIC

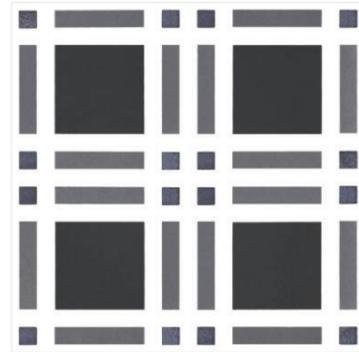

Metallic effect on tiles produces the iridescent and contemporary appearance of this fascinating material in all its variations, to give life to environments that are both elegant and surprising. Thanks to its metallised reflecting properties, this effect gives a beautiful shimmer when hit by light which adds personality to the tiles making the space look precious and rich in character. It has been a firm favourite in recent years for people looking for that modern, industrial look.
